Kaneb Center Workshop: Universal Design for Learning (open to postdocs!)

Tuesday, March 3; 10:30 to 11:45 a.m. in Room 246, Hesburgh Library

Instructors: Carson Running and Kathryn Mulholland
Graduate Associates, ND Learning | Kaneb Center

Do you ever wonder how to teach a diverse group of learners and still meet your curriculum requirements? Universal Design for Learning (UDL) is a framework to improve and optimize teaching and learning for all people based on scientific insights into how humans learn. This workshop will prepare you to implement UDL in your classroom, providing more flexibility and fewer barriers to learning.
What is a basilica? Why is there a grotto? Is football Christ's favorite sport? In this workshop, we will examine the history, culture, beliefs, and structure of the Catholic Church to provide members of the Notre Dame community with the information they need to make sense of the university's religious character.
